MR. BROOKS CORROBORATED.

The Christian Herald Comes to His Relief.

Since the interview of our good friend, Mr. R. W. Brooks, about the ostrich farm which he saw in Florida, the boys have been somewhat inclined to intimate that there was something fishy about it, and only the good name of Mr. Brooks prevented them from doing so. We find this corroboration of Mr. Brooks in the Christian Herald.

"In a letter from South Africa, a correspondent gives this entertaining account of the omnivorous ostrich: 'On our arrival they attached themselves to our camp, and being very tame, they were much petted and fed by the boys. The digestion of an ostrich is proverbial, and we can believe anything after witnessing some of the gastronomical performances in this camp. Match-boxes, bars of soap, jam tins as well as rubbish and refuse of all kinds are keenly relished by them. Everything they swallow passes down their long necks immediately under the skin, and it is very funny to see them snatch up a number of articles and see them chasing one another down their four feet of neck. We soon had to chase them out of camp as we found they did not confine themselves to what we didn't want, but were frequently surprised in an empty tent, eating brass-headed cartridges out of bandoliers, as well as picking brass buttons off clothes, while our brass rifle sights seemed to be regarded as an especially dainty tid-bit."

Seasickness.

A stewardess, after 15 years' service on one of the transatlantic liners—and an opinion on the subject from a person in her position is undoubtedly to be respected—has this to say about seasickness: "Almost everybody is a little sick, but a great many more persons could be less sick than they are if they would only be careful for a day or two before they sail. Lots of folks going off to Europe eat big dinners and luncheons for two or three days before they start, and as soon as they get the motion of the waves they have really a bilious attack. Sometimes when the crossing is very rough and I have been a little careless in my diet I feel the motion myself, but never when I take proper care. At the slightest dizziness or nausea I stop eating anything at all for eight or ten hours, and above all I never touch tea at that time. It is the overeating usually before they come on board that makes all the trouble."—New York Post.

An Overcautious Wife.

An incident occurred at the redemption bureau of the treasury which ought to be a warning to wives. A woman in New England placed $48 in bank bills in the oven of the kitchen stove in order to hide it from her husband. She forgot to take it out, and in the morning he kindled a hot fire and reduced the money to a crisp before his wife remembered where it was. She picked up the ashes, enough to half fill a wineglass, put them in a little box and sent them down to Washington to be redeemed. The experts, by the use of magnifying glasses, identified the bills to the amount of $36 and sent her that money, but it cost her $12 to fool her husband, and she will probably not try it again.—Chicago Record.

The Road to Convalescence.

A woman will be in bed all morning and go to a whist party in the afternoon. She will be genuinely sick all day and go like a martyr to a card party at night. The plea that her absence might inconvenience her hostess is considered sufficient excuse. A man with an ache goes to bed and roars. It would be interesting to learn which is the shorter route to recovery.—Atchison Globe.

STARVING PORTO RICANS.

A dispatch from Ponce, Porto Rico, yesterday says:

An announcement having been made that the Porto Rico Benevolent Society would relieve the poor of Ponce, the town is simply overwhelmed with an army of starving or pauperized folks No fewer than 200 men, women and children, sick and starving, are living in the corridor of the city hall and a kiosk on the plaza. Most of these are fed by the society. Letters have been received announcing that 5,000 more are on the way.

The city will deport outside paupers who are now here, and the station guard will prevent the entrance into the city of others. The price of provisions continues very high and discontent grows, but thus far there has been no public demonstration.

It is reported that an executioner has been found to carry out the sentence passed by the Porto Rican court, upon five murderers, condemned to be garrotted and the garroting will take place Saturday.

Bear in mind that this a description of what exists in one town. No doubt the conditions are duplicated, in a less degree, all over the island. And the American congress is largely responsible for these conditions. There is no escape from this statement. The island was in bad condition before, but beginning with President McKinley's free trade declaration last December, the constant uncertainty of what congress would do, has rapidly increased the distress, paralyzed business, and brought numbers of people to the point of starvation. The bill for the government of the island has been held up in congress, by some influence. There are not wanting many bold and outspoken assertions that the sugar and tobacco trusts are doing the work. In putting its caption over the dispatch above quoted, one exceedingly conservative and just newspaper heads it the "Trust's Reconcentrados." If this is true, it is a fearful charge to be brought against the protector who opened its arms and received the little island into its keeping

AMENDMENT CARRIES IN HAWAII.

It may not have escaped the memory of man that Senator Pritchard has a resolution pending in the Senate declaring that the proposed constitutional amendment in North Carolina is contrary to the constitution of the United States. We note in this connection that the House yesterday passed the bill for the government of Hawaii and making the qualification for voting that each applicant must be able to read and write and shall have paid his poll tax. Thus we may say that the proposed amendment to the North Carolina constitution has been carried in Hawaii, unless Senator Pritchard holds it up in the Senate.

The Queen yesterday suggested that the Duke of York name his son Patrick. This sop to the Irish will not be a good morsel unless the kid can be called Pat.

The Democratic State Convention of Pennsylvania yesterday instructed its delegation to vote as a unit for Col. W. J. Bryan. This is the opening, and if Admiral Dewey, in declaring himself a Democrat, had any eyes on the nomination by that party, he had as well take them off.

DR. J. M. WORTH.

A Most Just Tribute to His Memory.

Charlotte Observer.

Our news columns tell of the death of Dr. John Milton Worth at his home at Asheboro yesterday morning, at the ripe age of 89 years. By antecedents Dr. Worth was a Quaker and he was a representative of a distinct type of our citizenship. Simplicity and ruggedness were his distinguishing characteristics. He was plain of speech and manner. As honest as the day is long, the term applies to him not only as affects the matter of dollars and cents, but extends to thought, word and deed. He wore his heart on his sleeve, and every one who knew him read him. He had no concealments—everybody knew what he thought about everything. For many years Dr. Worth was a conspicious figure in the State. He was prominent in business and politics, and his opinion about either was always worth hearing. In politics he was influential, not because he had any of the arts of the politician, but because he deserved to be. As a legislator at different times he won a worthy reputation, and rounded out his public service as one of the wisest treasurers the State has ever had. He had reached the full measure of his years. Death came to him not untimely. The passing of a man so full of good and so capable of usefulness is of course to be deplored, but he had lived more than the alloted time, and in such case death seems natural. He leaves to his family, his friends and the State a fragrant memory, and it were a waste of words to express the hope that he may rest well.

When in retrospect, as the years roll by,
We look with a backward gaze,
The men will recall as the bad boys sigh
For a glimpse of the good old days!

A woman begins to show her age when she doesn't care who looks over the family Bible.

PROF. JOYNER NOT A CANDIDATE

WOULD NOT ACCEPT UNDER ANY CONSIDERATION.

Grateful to His Friends but Enthusiastic for Mebane—A Grave Suggestion.

It will be recollected that some days ago Prof. J. Y. Joyner was suggested by a correspondent of the Telegram as a suitable man for Superintendent of Public Instruction of North Carolina. Yesterday Prof. Joyner spoke very openly, earnestly, and emphatically on the subject. He not only would not accept the nomination himself, but he is exceedingly enthusiastic for Mr. Mebane. He regards Mr. Mebane not only as a highly capable man whose course deserves endorsement, but as the most available candidate that could now be hit upon, and one altogether satisfactory to all the school people of the state.

"In the first place," said Prof. Joyner, "I am pledged to Mr. Mebane, and have talked in public and private for him. I am voluntarily pledged to him, believe in him, am working for him, and hope to see him nominated by the Democratic convention next week. I am sincerely pledged to him, and even if the people wanted me, of which I have no assurance, I could not put myself in the light of having accepted an office after I had pledged my efforts to help in giving it to a friend.

"This gentleman is the most available man in the State so far as my knowledge goes. A poll of the men of the denominational colleges, of the State institutions, of the city superintendents and the county superintendents would show them almost to a unit in his favor. When the people engaged in the business of educating are thus practically agreed, they ought to be heard. They recognize that he has earnestly and unwaveringly sought the welfare of the schools; he has thought of nothing, cared for nothing, but the education of the State's children. To show how the school people regard him, take as an example the school men of this county. The Professors Holt are for him, and one of them has published a card in his favor: President Hobbs, of Guilford College, published a card in yesterday's Telegram advocating his nomination; Prof. W. T. Whitsett favors him, so do Supt. Grimsley, of the city schools, and President McIver, President Peacock, County Superintendent J. R. Wharton, Prof. P. P. Claxton, editor of the N. C. Journal of Education; Supt. Crowell, of the High Point schools, and probably others. That's the way it is all over the State."

"But I have yet to speak of the most serious phase of the case," continued Prof. Joyner. "It is simply this. No one has yet brought any charge of inefficiency against Mr Mebane. The only ground of objection to him is that he has not been a regular Democrat. Too great emphasis of this point may result in encouraging the idea that the office is a piece of political pie. This would defeat everything the educators of the state have been fighting against for years, and with a stroke would sweep away all that has been accomplished towards getting the schools out of politics.

"This office ought to be administered by a trained educator. Where is a competent man beside Mr. Mebane who has any standing in the profession that could take it without grave personal sacrifices? Some one of this kind will have to be induced to take it, or Mr. Mebane be nominated, or the place go to a politician who knows little and cares less about education.

"As to politics, I am a Democrat," concluded the Professor. "I was reared one and am one in principle. There is but one question before the people this year, and that is the amendment, and Mr. Mebane believes in that heartily and will vote for it. The Democratic party in 1898 asked all persons who believed in white supremacy and promised to vote for it to come into the primaries and partake of its nominations. The same question is before us today, and presumably the same invitation will be made, and if a man by this test is a good enough Democrat to help in nominating others he ought to be good enough to be nominated. Mr. Mebane will give the ticket more strength than some people think. The people, irrespective of party, have watched his course and want to endorse it. And then it is wrong to talk of what were the politics of a man's father and damn him by that. There is more reason in giving Mr. Mebane credit for a live, Democratic wife, bred and nurtured in the party, the daughter of a one-legged Confederate soldier, who for sixteen years was the register of deeds of Catawba county and a staunch Democrat, than to throw up the fact that his father, who is dead, voted a Republican ticket. It's the refinement of cruelty and injustice to down a man on such grounds.

"I am for Mebane, first, last and all the time, and beside that, I could not accept the place for personal reasons, even if it were tendered me, which it will not be. I appreciate the kindness of my friends, but I will not allow them to present my name"

WAR ALMOST PRECIPITATED.

A Russian Warship Shoots a Torpedo at a Japanese Craft.

Vancouver, B. C., April 5—The war toward which Russia and Japan are believed by Oriental papers to be drifting was almost precipitated by an incident which Japanese officials have vainly endeavored to suppress, but which is reported by ship advices today.

On March 24th a Japanese battleship encountered a Russian cruiser in the neighborhood of Hakodate. Without any warning the Russian discharged a torpedo against the battleship, but missed the aim and the Japanese ship escaped unhurt, but before retiring fired several shots at her assailant.

Bandy, and I desire (if you will permit me) to give public expression through the Telegram of my high appreciation and admiration of this worthy and accomplished gentleman, a man whom, together with his entire and most estimable family, there is no one more peculiarly gifted in making every one happy around and about them, and I do congratulate your young people on that pleasant evening's entertainment at the home of that family, where, upon a former occasion, I had the honor to be guest and know how to appreciate the unprecedented hospitality and kindness of Prof. Bandy and his family. OAK RIDGE'S LINE UP.

How the Boys are Preparing to Stand Against Boston.

To the Editor of the Telegram:

Manager Wright has just arranged a game of ball with the Bostons Saturday. A good game may be expected for while of course the Oak Ridge boys are not in Boston's class exactly, they are in pretty good trim and will put up a stiff game. They will rely on holding Boston down fairly well and will win if they can. Howard, who held the University down to three hits, will likely pitch. Benbow will be on first, Bob Stafford on second, Bennett on third, Wicker on short, while in the outfield Kid Williams will take care of all the balls that do not go over the fence, and the reliable Carter will show the "bean eaters" how to play center. Smith will play right. Brake will catch, while tho' he is new to the position, his work is superb.

Since recounting the players, the writer advises the sporting fraternity to put the odds on Oak Ridge. This is a straight tip. Zeta.

The Grandest Treasure.

One of the fondest, happiest anticipations of a mother's heart is that by her husband's earnest toil, and by careful economy on both their parts they shall be able to lay by a little store which the baby when it is grown to manhood or womanhood shall have as its own private possession.

But every wife who expects to become a mother may provide a far more valuable treasure for her little one's future than can ever be contained in any savings bank if she will take the proper care of her own health and physical condition during the time when the baby is expected. And if every husband would feel it his bounden duty to see that all possible means are adopted to carry his wife safely through this critical time, he will help to bequeath to his offspring that health and natural vigor which is the grandest fortune a father can bestow.

"During the past year I found myself pregnant and in rapidly failing health," writes Mrs. W. J. Kidder, of Hill Dale Farm, (Enosburg Center) Enosburg, Vt., in a grateful letter to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. "I suffered dreadfully from bloating and urinary difficulty. I was growing perceptibly weaker each day and suffered much sharp pain at times. I felt that something must be done. I sought your advice and received a prompt reply. I followed your directions and took twelve bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and also followed your instructions. I began to improve immediately, my health became excellent, and I could do all my own work (we live on a good sized farm). I walked and rode all I could, and enjoyed it. I had a short easy confinement and have a healthy baby boy."

"Favorite Prescription" is the only proprietary medicine in the world invented by an educated physician and scientific specialist for the one specific purpose of restoring health and strength to the distinctly feminine organism. It is a prompt relief and permanent cure for every form of female complaint or weakness.

No remedy relieves constipation so quickly and effectually as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

SEVEN RUNNING SORES CURED —BY— Johnston's Sarsaparilla QUART BOTTLES.

THE GREAT SPRING MEDICINE.

JOHNSTON'S SARSAPARILLA as a Blood Food and Nerve Energizer, is the greatest SPRING MEDICINE ever discovered. It comes as a rich blessing from heaven to the "worn out," the run down, the overworked and debilitated. That "tired feeling," those "sinking spells," the languor and despondency which arise from badly nourished nerves, from thin, vitiated blood and an underfed body, vanish as if by a magic spell. The weariness, lassitude and nervous prostration which accompany the spring time and the heat of summer, are conquered and banished at once. For every form of neurasthenia, and all ailments of the brain and nerve, insomnia hysteria and nervousness generally, it is almost a specific. It furnishes the very elements to rebuild worn-out tissues. It feeds brain, nerve centers and nerves, calming and equalizing their action, makes rich, red, honest blood. Newness of life, new hope, new strength follow faithful use. It makes the weak strong, and the old young again.

It was the antiquated (but now happily exploded) method in the good old times to treat Salt Rheum, Scrofula, Cancer and other troublesome disorders arising from BLOOD TAINT with powerful alteratives, such as mercury, arsenic and other mineral agents. It was expected by this treatment that the poison could be killed while the blood was left to course through its channels holding in its circulation the specific germs of the disease. But in this way, every part of the body became more or less diseased. Nothing can be more terrible than a horribly destructive blood taint. It not only attacks silently the different structures of the body, but many times the bones are honey-combed and destroyed. It often seeks out the nerves and spinal cord, and again it will bring decay and death to some vital organ, as the kidneys, liver or stomach. There is only a scientific method for the cure of blood taint. That is, PURIFICATION! Every particle of the blood must be removed through the excretory channels, the lungs, kidneys, bowels, liver and skin. "First pure, then peaceable." The great restorative, reconstructive, revitalizer of the blood, JOHNSTON'S SARSAPARILLA, not only radically and thoroughly removes the taint, but also removes all mercury, calomel and other mineral poisons and fills the veins and arteries with the ruby, glowing current of vitality. "The blood is the life." Good health means pure blood. The old and reliable remedy, JOHNSTON'S SARSAPARILLA, is universally regarded as the greatest Blood Purifier ever discovered. This fact is now established beyond question or cavil.

Blood Troubles:

Cancer, Scrofula, Old Sores, Rheumatism, Contagious Blood Poison, Chronic Ulcers,

As the blood contains all the elements necessary to sustain life, it is important that it be kept free of all impurities, or it becomes a source of disease, poisoning instead of nourishing the body, and loss of health is sure to follow. Some poisons enter the blood from without, through the skin by absorption, or inoculation; others from within, as when waste products accumulate in the system and ferment, allowing disease germs to develop and be taken into the circulation. While all blood troubles have one common origin, each has some peculiarity to distinguish it from the other. Contagious Blood Poison, Scrofula, Cancer, Rheumatism, Eczema and other blood diseases can be distinguished by a certain sore, ulcer, eruption or inflammation appearing on the skin. Every blood disease shows sooner or later on the outside and on the weakest part of the body, or where it finds the least resistance. Many mistake the sore or outward sign for the real disease, and attempt a cure by the use of salves, liniments and other external applications. Valuable time is lost and no permanent benefit derived from such treatment.

BLOOD TROUBLES REQUIRE BLOOD REMEDIES; the poison must be completely and permanently eradicated—the blood reinforced, purified and cleansed, or the disease goes deeper and saps the very life. Mercury, potash and arsenic, the treatment usually prescribed in this class of diseases, are violent poisons, even when taken in small doses—never cure, but do much harm by adding another poison to the already overburdened, diseased blood.

SSS S. S. S., Nature's own remedy, made of roots and herbs, attacks the disease in the blood, antidotes and forces out all impurities, makes weak, thin blood rich, strong and healthy, and at the same time builds up the general health. S. S. S. is the only purely vegetable blood purifier known, and the only one that can reach deep-seated blood troubles. A record of 50 years of successful cures proves it to be a reliable, unfailing specific for all blood and skin troubles.

Free Medical Treatment.—Our Medical Department is in charge of skilled physicians, who have made blood and skin diseases a life study, so if you have Contagious Blood Poison, Cancer, Scrofula, Rheumatism, Eczema, an Old Sore or Ulcer, or any similar blood trouble, write them fully for advice about your case. All correspondence is conducted in strictest confidence. We make no charge for this service. Book on blood and skin diseases free. SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.

ROBERT HARDY'S SEVEN DAYS

A HEART AND ITS CONSEQUENCES

By Rev. CHARLES M. SHELDON.

Author of "In His Steps," "The Crucifixion of Philip Strong," "Malcom Kirk," Etc.

[Copyright, 1897, by Advance Publishing Co.]

CHAPTER VII.

As the engine drew near the scene of the wreck a great crowd could be seen standing about the track. Before the train came to a stop Robert Hardy leaped down from the cab and struggled forward, uttering cries of which he himself probably was not conscious. The accident had occurred upon a bridge which spanned a small river in the vicinity of Baldwin, near which lived Mr. Hardy's brother Will.

The engine, mail car, two day coaches, and two sleepers had crashed through, and, falling a distance of 50 feet, had partly broken through the ice of the frozen stream. To add to the horror of the disaster the two sleepers had caught fire, and there was absolutely no means to fight it. Mr. Hardy caught confused glimpses of men down on the ice throwing handfuls of snow upon the blazing timbers in a frantic attempt to drive back or put out the flames. He fell rather than scrambled down the steep, slippery bank of the stream, and then the full horror of the situation began to dawn upon him.

The baggage car and tender had fallen in such a way that the trucks rested upright on the ice, and the position of the timbers was relatively that of the train before it had left the track. One day coach lay upon its side, but had broken completely in two as if some giant hand had pulled it apart, leaving the ragged ends of timbers projecting toward one another in such curious fashion that if the two ends of the car had been pushed toward the middle the splintered beams would have fitted into place almost as if made on a pattern. The other day coach had fallen upon one end, and one-third of the engine was under water. The other end was resting partly against the broken end, standing up in the air like some curious, fantastic pillar or leaning tower.

Mr. Hardy was conscious of all this almost as he heard the groans of the injured and the cries of those begging to be released from the timbers under which they had been caught. But his own children! Never had he loved them as he did then.

The crowd of people had increased to a mass. The confusion was that of terror. Mr. Hardy rushed about the wreck searching for his children, a great fear in his heart as he thought of their probable fate, when the shrillest of all sounds, Bessie's dear voice, came to him, and the next moment he had caught up the child as she ran to him and strained her to his breast as in the old days when he had carried her about the house and yard.

"Where are Will and Clara?"

"They're here, and Will was hurt much more than I was, for Clara has fainted, and she is lying down over here."

Bessie led her father out across the ice to the edge of the bank, where a number of the victims had been laid on the cushions of the seats, some dead and dying. There lay Clara very white and still, with Will bending over her, himself bleeding from several wounds about the head and badly bruised, still conscious and trying to help others.

Mr. Hardy kneeled down in the snow by his daughter and Will, seeing him there, looked surprised, but he sobbed: "Oh, she is dead!"

"No," said her father; "she is not."

Clara moaned, and her lips moved, but she did not open her eyes, and then he noticed that a strange mark lay across her face.

How Mr. Hardy succeeded in carrying the child to the top of the bank; how he left her there in the care of some frightened women while he went down into that pit to rescue victims who were dead and groaning for help; how Bessie related the accident of the sleeping car and tried to explain how she was not hurt except a scratch or two, because she fell between two car seats and was protected from injury; how the cry went up as it was discovered that the dead and dying would number not 10 or 12, as Bessie had supposed; how finally Robert Hardy and Will and Bess and Clara, sister victims, were taken back to Baldwin, where a great crowd of anxious people was surging about the station and over the track—all this Mr. Hardy and Maxton was first to learn as he came down by the shops at daybreak as in the rainy morning himself on the dead platform of the coach; how he met his children and found there was sorrow in Barton that night and dreadful days to come; how Mr. Hardy, long after midnight, entered his house, filled by the events of the day, fell asleep and dreamed the whole night again—all this and a great deal more might be of interest in the most remarkable events that ever occurred in Barton, but would be out of place in a narrative. For it is all written literally, only the details of it no pen can describe, and no mind can literally recall.

Mr. Hardy arose about 8 o'clock restless, feverish, very lame and sore from the injuries of the night. His first thought was of Clara. When he looked at the girl seemed to be in a deep sleep, only that strange mark on her face made them all anxious. It was not a bruise, but it ran across the eyes, which alone made her father found frozen stream.

Will insisted on staying in the house, and Mrs. Hardy arrived for his presence as a means of restoring consciousness to Clara, who still gave no sign of recognition, although she moaned and seemed to be free from pain. The doctor and surgeon were summoned to the house. But Mr. Hardy knew that Clara as he came in from the bank that he went down into the pit to help James if he wouldn't have the help of any of the doctors at once. How is she James looked him in the look that love and brave.

Mr. Hardy, laying his hand on Will's shoulder, "I don't know, but there is something strange about it. Get the doctor if you can. But there will be many other sad cases to attend to in Barton. Oh, it was terrible!"

He sat down and covered his face, while James, with a brief "God help us, Sir," went out in search of a doctor.

Mr. Hardy went up stairs again and, with his wife, knelt down and offered a prayer of thanksgiving and of appeal. "O Lord," said Robert, "grant that this dear one of ours may be restored to us again. Spare us this anguish, not in return for our goodness, but out of thy great compassion for our sins repented of."

Will and Bess lay in the next room, and now that the reaction had set in they were sleeping, Will feverish and restless, Bess quiet and peaceful, as if nothing had happened out of the usual order of things.

"Where is George?" asked Mr. Hardy as he rose from his prayer.

"I don't know, Robert. He started down to the train a little while after you did. Haven't you seen him?"

"No, Mary. God grant he may not"—Mr. Hardy did not dare finish his thought aloud.

His wife guessed his thought, and together the two sat hand in hand, drawn very near by their mutual trouble and by all the strange events of that strange week, and together they talked of the accident and of Clara and James and their eldest son, and then Mrs. Hardy said as she trembling drew her husband's face near to her:

"Robert, do you still have that impression concerning the time left you here to live? Do you still think this week is to be the end?"

Mrs. Hardy had a vague hope that the shock of the accident might have destroyed the impression of the dream, but her hope was disappointed.

"My dear wife," replied Robert, "there is not the least doubt in my mind that my dream was a vision of what will happen. There is no question but that after Sunday I shall not be with you. This is Wednesday. How lightninglike the days have flown! How precious the moments are! How many of them I have wasted in foolish selfishness! Mary, I should go mad with the thought if I did not feel the necessity of making this week the best week of my life, only I do not know what is most important to do. If it had been seven months or even seven weeks, I might have planned more wisely. Oh, it is cruelly brief, the time! But I must make the wisest possible use of it. This accident, so unexpected, has complicated the matter. I had not reckoned on it."

"Oh, she is dead!"

How many of us do reckon on accidents? They always come into our lives with a shock. Yet it seems possible that a man who lives very close to God every day might be so ready for everything that not even the most terrible catastrophe could make much difference to his plans for daily life, least of all deprive him of his reason, as it has so often done. Robert Hardy was just beginning to realize dimly that life is not one thing, but many things, and that its importance is the importance which belongs to the character of God himself.

He began to talk calmly with his wife concerning what he would do that day and was still talking about it when James came in with a doctor, who at once went up stairs. He was just from the scene of the accident and bore marks of a hard night's work. His first glance at Clara was hard and professional, but as he looked he grew very grave, and an expression of serious surprise came over his weary face. He laid his hands on the girl's eyes and examined them, raised her hand and dropped it upon the bed again. Then, turning to the father and mother, he said gently:

"You must prepare yourselves for a terrible fact resulting from the accident to your daughter. She has suffered a shock that will probably render her blind as long as she lives."

Mr. and Mrs. Hardy listened, pale faced and troubled. It was hard to think of the girl, so strong willed, so passionate and yet so capable of noble impulses and loving desires, as all her life shut up within the darkness thus. It was bitter to think of this for her. What would it be to her when she awoke to the whole consciousness of it?

The doctor spoke again slowly: "There is another thing you ought to be prepared for. In rare cases like this it happens sometimes that a loss of hearing accompanies the loss of sight." Then, after a pause: "And with the loss of sight and hearing it is possible the peculiar shock has deprived your daughter of the power of speech. I do not know yet whether this has happened, but I prepare you for the worst."

"Blind and deaf and dumb!" murmured Mr. Hardy, while his wife sat down and buried her face in the bedclothes and sobbed. It seemed terrible to them.

The doctor, after a little further examination, said nothing more could be done at present, gave directions for certain necessary treatment and departed after giving a look at Will and Bess and prescribing for them.

Mr. Hardy went down stairs and quietly told James all that the doctors had said. To a man living on the verge of eternity, as Mr. Hardy was, there was no time for evasions or the postponing of bad news or the utterance of soft speeches.

James took the news more calmly than Mr. Hardy thought he would. It was evident he did not realize all that was meant by it.

"Can you love Clara under these conditions?" asked Mr. Hardy, looking at James with a sympathy that the young man could not help feeling.

"Yes, sir; more than ever. Why, is she not more in need of it than ever?"

"True, but what can you do with a helpless creature like that?"

"Gold help us, sir! If she were my wife now and were dependent on me, don't you think I could care for her tenderly, better than any one else in the world?"

Mr. Hardy shook his head. "This is a hard blow to me, James. I don't know just what to say yet. But it is possible the poor girl may not have to suffer all that. Let us hope the doctor is not justified in his supposition. Indeed, he said he could not tell for certain that loss of hearing and speech would follow. If it does, I cannot see how Clara can retain her reason when she recovers from the shock. James, I believe you are a good fellow. I have not forgotten my own courtship. I will not stand in the way between you and your love for Clara in anything right and reasonable. I had hoped we might have a good talk together over the matter. This accident has made it impossible for a time at least, but I confide in you as an honest, true man. We must wait for events to take shape. Meanwhile let us pray God to give us wisdom and lead us into the way we need to go."

James Caxton listened to Mr. Hardy with a feeling of astonishment. This was not the Robert Hardy he had known all his life; this was a new man. For a moment his own hopes and fears were almost lost sight of in the thought of the great change in the elder man. In a tumult of feeling he went home after begging Mrs. Hardy to send him word if Clara became worse or if there were any service he could render the family.

Robert went back up stairs, where his wife sat by the side of the injured girl.

"Mary," he said, "I must go down to the shops. You know I left word with Wellman to do what he could in the office until I could get down, but this accident has made it imperative that I be there myself. There are details the men cannot attend to. I cannot do any more here, and I must do what I can for the sufferers. God has been merciful to us, dear. Our dear ones are spared to us. Oh, when I heard Bessie's voice in that hell's pit it seemed to me God was taking pity on me for the burden I am carrying this week! And if she had been killed I do believe I should have gone mad. Pray for me, sweetheart!"

And with a kiss and embrace Robert left the house, and even in the sorrow of all her trouble Mrs. Hardy felt a great wave of joy flow through her at the thought of a love come back to her, and as she went to the window and watched the tall, strong figure swing down the street she almost felt a girl again and wondered if he would turn around and see her there and toss his hat to her as in the old days. Yes; just before he reached the corner where he had to turn he looked back up at the window, saw his wife standing there and took off his hat, with a smile, and she waved her hand at him and colored as when her Robert used to do the same thing while he was courting her.

"Two fools!" somebody says. Yes; two children of God who have seen his face and learned what all this life means.

He found much to do at the shops. The accident necessitated special work. It looked to him as if he must be down there all day. There was almost a panic in the planing rooms. The air was heavy with the horror of the night before. Owing to the wreck there was more need of work in the shops than ever, but along toward noon Burns came into the office, pulling a long face and asking Mr. Hardy to step across the yard and talk to the men, who had threatened, Burns said, to do mischief if they were not given the afternoon to go down to the scene of the disaster. Mr. Hardy, with a sinking heart, rose and followed Burns into the planing rooms. He told the foreman to get the men together in the center of the room. They stopped their machines and gathered in the largest open space between the planers, and Mr. Hardy addressed them:

"What do you want? Burns tells me there is dissatisfaction. Speak out so that we may know what the trouble is."

PRITCHARD VOTED FOR IT.

Mr. Kluttz Back in Washington—Fate of the Porto Rican Bill.

Special to the Telegram.

Washington April 5—Representative Kluttz of North Carolina, who has been at his home at Salisbury during the past week to attend the funeral of his daughter; Miss Mary Troy Kluttz, who died at Johns Hopkins University Hospital, of appendicitis, has returned to Washington. Mr. Kluttz will resume his duties in congress at once, and will probably remain at Washington for some time before returning home, although he may return later in the session when he feels that he can get away, to look after some of his private affairs.

Mr. Kluttz was not accompanied back to Washington from Salisbury by his family. His wife, it is reported is quite ill from the shock of her daughter's death, and is now said to be confined to her bed. She may return to Washington with her children some time soon.

When the final vote was taken in the senate the other night Senator Butler was paired on the Porto Rico bill. Senator Pritchard, as it was known he would do, voted for the passage of the bill.

Having passed the senate the Porto Rican bill now goes back to the house of representatives for the concurrence of that body. The opposition think the bill will be defeated, while the leaders of the republicans are confident that the senate amendments will be agreed to, and that the bill will become a law. They say that the result of the spring elections in the west, which have mostly been favorable to the republicans, will strengthen the republicans in their determination to levy a tax on Porto Rican commodities. It is likely that the opposition to the tariff will strive to secure several days for debate before the vote is taken on the concurrence or non-concurrence of the senate amendments.

Lawyers are looking for spring suits.

HORNER REPLIES TO OAK RIDGE.

SAYS THAT THEY ARE PLAYING TO WIN THIS YEAR.

And Are Doing So Under Ex'sting Circumstances—Professor Ho't's Statement

To the Editor of the Telegram:

Inclosed you will find a letter from Prof. J. C. Horner, with a request to me to have same published in your paper. Please publish as per request and below put my explanation as inclosed. You may sign my name to what I send.

Thanking you in advance, I am,

Yours very truly,

R. H. Wright.

Office Horner School,
Oxford, N.C., April 3, 1900

Prof. R. H. Wright,
Oak Ridge Institute,

Dear Sir:—I have read your last letter to the manager of our base ball team, Prof. J. M. Oldham, in regard to adding new strength to our teams. You are well aware that in the past I have stood for playing only bona fide students, and that rule has not been agreed to. This year we have entered the ball field to play and win under existing practices, that is by using others than bona fide students. If the principle is admitted the number is of no consequence. We started in to make a farce of it by using enough to win all games. We posted ourselves as near as possible, so as to know how many it would take to win. Our list contained Devin, Wood, Hicks, Fenner, Crockett, Lambert, Holland, Warren, Glavin. These were all to be matriculated as students or teachers. Wood and Crockett have not matriculated. Lambert did not in time to send his name to you. Devin did not think he could take the trip to Greensboro. Fenner withdrew because when at first we sent out requests to all institutions for permission to use outsiders, it appeared that they would refuse to allow it. This left us with but three outsiders.

After our engagements were made with you, you wish to bring in Stafford and Taylor. To this we have a right to object, because it is asking to add too much strength after we have matched up against you. But as the principle of admitting outsiders exists, we are willing for you to bring them in, provided you permit us to offset by bringing in two more. You agreed to let Devin in. You may not add Stafford and Taylor, unless you permit us to add Lambert, (and another man if we can find him), to the list sent you by us. Expense is of no consequence. I am in to win regardless of expense, and then when our convention meets in Durham, May 5th, the use of professionals or others than bona fide students will evidently be shown up to be a farce. A bill of costs will be exhibited at the convention; and to carry out my project I must win, so give me fair play. I have no complaint to make of you, for in all your dealings with me I have found you a gentleman, fair and honest, which I cannot say of a certain other fellow.

I will add that in making our schedule of games from home, it was a part of our scheme to play some of those games without any regular school boy, because I thought it was improper to permit boys to be absent from so many of their duties. That is why our original list of outsiders was so large. Not all of them were star plays.

Very truly yours,

J. C. Horner.

By "engagements" in "After our engagements with you ——" I am sure Professor Horner means after our games were scheduled. For the names Messrs. Stafford and Taylor were sent in with the rest of our teams over ten days before the game was to be played, as per agreement.

REMARKABLE CURE OF RHEUMATISM.

Kenna, Jackson Co., W. Va.

About three years ago my wife had an attack of rheumatism which confined her to her bed for over a month and rendered her unable to walk a step without assistance, her limbs being swollen double their normal size. Mr. S. Maddox insisted on my using Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I purchased a fifty-cent bottle and used it according to the directions and the next morning she walked to breakfast without assistance in any manner, and she has not had a single attack since.—A. B. WINE OF CARDUI

THE LINK THAT BINDS.

JACKSON, TENN., Nov. 28.

I was subject to miscarriage for three years, and suffered constantly with backache. I wrote to you for advice, and after using three bottles of Wine of Cardui, according to your directions, I am strong and well, and the mother of a fine girl baby.

Mrs. E. N. JOWERS.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

There is no use talking—a baby in the house is the link that binds husband and wife together. Nothing is sadder than fruitless wedlock. The prattling and cooing of the little ones offset a thousand times the occasional worries and trials of life. When a wife is barren, there is a derangement somewhere in the genital organs, caused by one or more of those common disorders known as "female troubles". Wine of Cardui is the remedy. It puts the organs of generation in a strong and healthy condition, fitting the wife for the sacred duty of reproducing her kind. During the period of gestation the entire system of the expectant mother is built up to withstand the ordeal of labor, and when the little one makes its advent it is lusty and strong, well-fitted to grow to maturity in perfect health. The mother, too, passes through the trial with little pain and no dread. Wine of Cardui is truly a wonderful medicine for women.

Steam Roller Arrived.

This paper has been talking about good roads ever since it began its existence. Now for the real thing. The new steam roller recently purchased by the county commissioners of Guilford, has arrived, and will right early begin performing its duty. It is a large fifteen-ton roller, manufactured by Russell & Co., Massilon, Ohio. As it stood on a flat car at the depot today, occupying a whole car by itself, many pleased and interested spectators viewed it with satisfaction. On a large streamer was the name of the builder and place of business, and in large white letters, "Built for Guilford County."

Steamer Boys Jollify.

At the meeting of Steamer Co. No. 1. last night, Mr. W. Will Bain resigned as foreman, and Mr. John Lewis, one of the oldest, truest and best firemen in the State, was elected unanimously to fill the vacancy. A handsome clock was presented to Mr. Lewis as a token of appreciation of his faithful service as a private in the past, and the spendid record he is expected to make in the future as foreman of the company. After the meeting the boys repaired to Andrew & Stockwell's store, and had an impromptu banquet of canned goods, and such articles as are kept in stock ready to eat.

The Long Distance 'Phone.

Mr. N. O. Wood, of the American telephone system, is in town arranging to put in the long distance 'phone. Mr. Wood says he thinks it will be in operation here in about three weeks. There are yet a few poles to set, and some wires to run, and Greensboro will be on speaking terms with all the large cities north, south and west. The office in this city will be in Grissom & Fordham's drug store.

MORNING SESSION.

The convention met this morning with President Hendren in the chair. With Miss Helen Wheeler presiding at the organ there was a short but lively song service and prayer led by Evangelist W. P. Fife. A half hour was then given to a good-fellowship meeting, which was a novel and interesting way of allowing each man to introduce himself, giving his name, where from and what line of association work engaged in. This fellowship meeting was pleasantly conducted by Rev. A. T. Graham, and many of the introductions were bright, witty and sparkling with good humor and genuine good fellowship.

At 10:15 a Bible reading was conducted by General Secretary Huntington, of Charlotte. His subject was, "The Baptism of the Holy Ghost." He compared the lives of the apostles before and after the baptism of the Holy Ghost, and said: "Jesus intended that our lives should be full to overflowing. It is a gift that cannot be bought, but every Christian has the spirit in a measure. It is one thing to receive Christ as a Savior, but another thing as the giver of the Holy Ghost in great measure. How Christ must be grieved that so many of his followers receive not this one great gift of his. In every man's heart there is a cross and a throne. If self is the throne, Jesus is on the cross, but if self be crucified Jesus will be enthroned."

The Bible Work Conference, at 11 o'clock, was presided over by S M. Bard, State Secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association of Pennsylvania. Mr. Bard stated that one-half of the college men in Pennsylvania were engaged in Bible study, and that there is hardly a college in the Keystone State without a Y. M. C. A. A large per cent. of the students of North Carolina colleges are members of Bible classes. The speaker declared that the force which shall save our young men will not be dash and courage, but knee work—prayer. "There is nothing that leads so much to prayer as Bible study; it leads men to Christ. Most of us can trace our knowledge of the Bible to the fact that we were taught by men well versed in the Scriptures. It fits men for active Christian work."

Mr. O. B. Van Horn, of Asheville, read a paper on the "Essentials of a Permanent and Successful Bible Study Department." The scope of this work may be divided into three parts—object, method and result.

The object is to gain a comprehersive grasp of the Bible; to train Christian men for service; to direct and train men in independent study of the Bible, and to lead men to be disciples of Christ.

The method pursued is through five grades or courses; four lines of study—general, devotional, training and evangelistic, and three examinations.

The results are: More intelligent work, increase in Bible study, unification of Bible study, systematic courses, and the development of Christian manhood.

W. W. Turner, general secretary of the Wilmington Y. M. C. A., made a short address on the subject, "Is there still a need for the workers training class?" He emphasized the fact that a deep Bible student is always a personal worker, and the importance of knowing the Bible fully that men may be led to Christ. Mr. Turner gave most of his time to a full discussion of personal workers' classes.

Messrs. Knebel, Van Horn and Turner answered inquiries relative to Bible study.

The meeting was most inspiring and helpful.

The morning exercises were closed with prayer by Evangelist Fife.

At 3:30 this afternoon conferences of college and city delegates were held. G. Mebane Smith, college secretary of Virginia, representing the student department of the international committee, had charge of the students' conference. President Hendren, of Winston, presided over the other conference. The meetings were informal, the best methods of prosecuting the various lines of work being discussed.

The State Executive Committee held its annual meeting at 5:15, at which reports of the officers for the past year were received.

Tonight, State Secretary Bard, of Pennsylvania, will deliver an address on "The Association Among Railroad Men."

is where we stand in the lumber business. At the kicking post, as it were, in regard to prices.

First comes the owner of the timber. He just woke up to the value of it and wants double last year's prices. Then the sawmill man. He has not been making a fortune and thinks now he should share a little in the general prosperity

They say to us: "We must have so much for our trees and work." After a while it is "up to you." Don't kick. You don't suppose we have nerve enough to put up prices unless they had first been put up on us. No, indeed. But prices are NOT high. They have been to low and are just now getting reasonable. Your children will be glad to build at double the price it now costs you. It is a trite, but true saying, if you want to build, "Now is the time."

And ours is the place to get the stuff.
